A LURID ELECTION HELD IN CHICAGO

HOTTEST MAYORALTY FIGHT HELD IN WINDY CITY IN YEARS

One Gangster, Who Defied Policeman, Was Slain On the Eve of the Election—All Patrolmen Given Orders To Shoot First—Machine Guns Posted To Keep Order—Owing To Disorder In the Black Belt This Quarter Is Being Closely Watched.

Fears that violence and death would mark municipal election in Chicago were borne out Monday evening, when police, in making a round-up of suspects in preparation for Tuesday's balloting, encountered Vincent "Schemer" Drucci, notorious gang leader and liquor runner, and George Moran, both said to be Thompson supporters.

After they had been arrested, to be held in cells until after the election, police say that Drucci made a move to draw a weapon, whereupon Detective Daniel Healy shot him dead.

Battle lines were drawn closely Monday night for the municipal election, in which approximately 1,000,000 voters will declare their verdict, after the most vicious campaign in the history of Chicago. Rain fell in torrents Monday night and indications are that it will continue thru Tuesday which may cut a big figure if the voting is close.

A warning to gangsters to wear bullet-proof vests Tuesday, in the event the possibility that retaliation for the killing of "Schemer" Drucci, leader of the powerful North Side beer gang, might be attempted. They were prepared to defend themselves, and also to intervene in any gang strife that might arise thru the clashes of political factions.

First squads of special police armed with machine guns were on duty Monday night. They were augmented by increased forces Tuesday morning an hour before the polls opened.

Chicago's black belt, where many thousands of negroes are crowded in a few blocks, is being guarded doubly.

Had the election been conducted a week ago Thompson undoubtedly would have won over his two opponents by at least 150,000 plurality, possibly 200,000.

However, in the last three days he has been slipping from this peak, and Mayor Dever has been making remarkable gains.

Dr. John Dill Robertson, running as an independent on a smash-crime and a city ownership of utilities platform, continues to be a negligible poor third in the exciting race. There are intimations that the little group which has been backing Robertson will go over, almost bodily, to Dever election morning.

Based in the latest "stray ballot" poll by four newspapers, the largest and most comprehensive ever attempt ed, Thompson, if he is victorious, will go in with not more than 75,000 to 90,000 plurality.

The negro question loomed high over other issues in the closing hours. Inflammatory dodgers were scattered thruout the city.

"Two hundred thousand negroes of Chicago working in the stock yards and all over Chicago will demand more public offices for negroes, and if Thompson is elected there will be twice as many negroes appointed to public office and working all over the city."

The people also were told in these handbills that election of Thompson would start a black tide from the south that would engulf the common white laborers of Chicago.

On the Thompson side, the Dever Republican supporters were told that if Dever is elected it will be a blow to President Coolidge; that it will strengthen the chances of the nomination of Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York and the 1928 Democratic presidential convention.

Murals Centuries Ago

Archeologists have found in southern Europe evidences of the first mural decorations, dating back, according to their compilations, to the Sixth and Eighth centuries B. C. These decorations were crude paintings on the walls of these primitive living abodes and depicted, for the most part, the life game on which these early peoples depended for food.

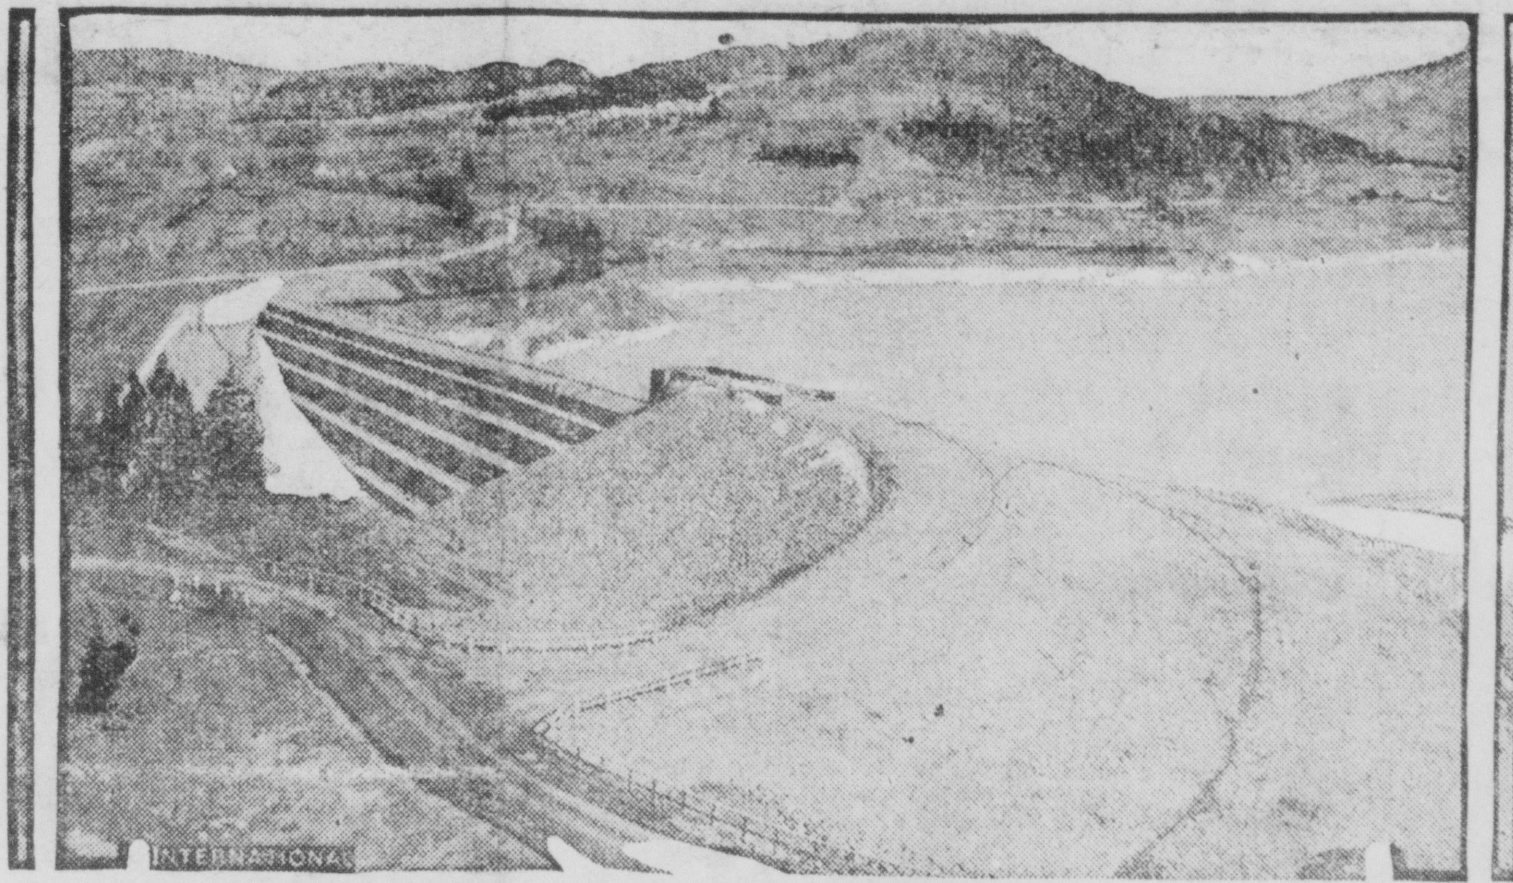

Useful "Camphor Bug"

In a small insect discovered in the forests of Sumatra, an English naturalist sees a possible rival of the camphor tree as a source of the useful drug. The creature secretes a milky fluid which possesses the properties of camphor, it is said, and the suggestion has been made that these insects might be raised artificially, as are silkworms, to produce camphor, which is now obtained from trees.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

The echo is now explained as Nature's way of proving her power by getting the last word in an argument with a woman.

To Satisfy Gotham's Great Thirst

What was once the thriving little town of Gilboa, N. Y., is now the Scholastic reservoir, which, via the Ashokan reservoir, supplies New York city with about 22,000,000,000 gallons of water. The former town is now covered by 150 feet of water. The photograph gives a general view of the Gilboa dam and the Scholastic reservoir.

Wool Growers Association at Farm Bureau.

Sheep and wool growers of Pickaway county are to meet at the Farm bureau office, Friday, April 15, at one o'clock p. m. to discuss the opportunities afforded thru cooperative marketing of wool. L. B. Palmer, president of the Ohio Wool Growers' Co-operative association, also president of the Ohio Farm bureau will discuss the plans used in receiving, grading, selling and paying for wools handled thru the wool pool. Methods of preparing the wool on the farm will also be a part of the discussion as the feeder and breeder makes the grade. The wool grader in the warehouse classifies the grade. There are over 9000 head of sheep in Pickaway county. Organized wool growers of Ohio have established during the past nine years a marketing agency for the Ohio sheep and wool growers upon a basis of paying for the wools upon their respective merits and grade. Wool growers of Indiana, Michigan and Kentucky have been utilizing this service thru the Ohio Wool Growers' organization. The Ohio Wool Pool handles annually better than 4,000,000 pounds of wool. Enamel paint is dulled by soap. Such paint may be cleaned by rubbing first with a woolen or cotton flannel cloth, wrung out of hot water, and then with a clean dry cloth. Spots, stains and dirt that will not yield to hot water alone, may be removed with a fine scourer. This must be applied lightly in order not to scratch the surface.

BIG POWDER EXPLOSION AT CLEVELAND, O.

Fifty People Injured, Bronze Powder Works Struck by Lightning—Big Loss.

Ten terrific explosions early Tuesday rocked the east side of Cleveland. Fifty persons were injured by the blast. The explosions threw scores of persons from their beds and shattered hundreds of windows.

Fire following the blasts consumed the plant of the Ohio Bronze Powder company, causing a loss of $100,000.

Plants of the Jordan Motor company and the Apex Washing Machine company were damaged by the concussion.

The explosions are believed to have been caused by a bolt of lightning striking the buildings of the Bronze powder works.

Following the vivid flash of lightning sheets of flames lighted the sky in the vicinity of the powder company plant. The blaze quickly burned thru the powder works destroying the main building with its stock and equipment.

Firemen were kept back by the heat of the fire and the explosions which occurred without warning. Twenty firemen were knocked down by one heavy concussion and Lieutenant George Mace sustained a dislocated right shoulder.

The fire spread quickly threatening more than a hundred homes in the vicinity. In one house menaced by the embers, two children were sick abed. N. W. Stevens, the father, was seriously burned rescuing the patients.

The windows in one entire side of the Jordan plant were broken out by the force of the explosions. The Apex plant was similarly heavily damaged. Watchmen at the two factories were cut and buried.

Residents in the neighborhood, rudely hurled from their beds were forced into the streets to face a driving rain in scanty clothing.

Many of these whose names could not be learned were painfully cut and bruised by falling glass and debris.

The fire following the explosion was the second serious blaze during the night. Two fire chiefs earlier were injured in an outbreak in the Hickox building which caused $20,000 damage. The origin of the fire was undetermined.

Lightning struck the roof of the home of James Dwyer in Garfield heights and resulting flames caused $3,500 damage. Mrs. Dwyer and her two children were overcome by smoke and carried from the burning house.

Twenty families were forced from their apartments in another fire during the night.

SHAME

Is Chief Reason For Abandoned Babies.

Pointing out that the number of babies being abandoned is on the increase, Mrs. Mary E. Hamilton, famous New York City policewoman, says in an article in this week's Liberty that shame at the baby's presence is the chief cause of their abandonment. "It is unbelievable but true that scarcely a day passes in the life of cities but some child is abandoned, sometimes dead, sometimes alive," she writes. "These abandoned babies are found in ash cans, dark hallways, and suitcases. They are left in telephone booths, subway stations, rest rooms, expensive hotel suites, bureau drawers in cheap rooming houses, and often in churches.

"Generally the events leading up to this human tragedy are grim and sordid," the writer continues. "Foremost among the known causes is the sheer inability on the part of the mother to provide for her offspring. It is not easy for a woman with a baby in her arms to find work, and when she is cold and hungry and weak as the result of having given birth to a child, she is capable of desperate things.

"For every case in which the cause is economic, there are ninety-nine cases in which the baby is abandoned because its presence would bring shame to one or both of the parents.

OHIO SPRAY

SERVICE TO AID FRUIT GROWERS

Fruit growers of Ohio are to receive accurate and timely information concerning the time to apply the various sprays for apple scab. The "spray service," it was announced, will be conducted by plant pathologists of the extension department of the College of Agriculture Ohio State University and of the Ohio Experiment Station co-operating. The spray service, which was inaugurated last year, was so helpful to fruit growers in securing efficient and economical control of apple scab, that they have insisted upon its continuance this year.

The spray service substitutes a flexible spray schedule based upon the condition of the fungus which causes the disease and the prevailing weather conditions, as well as the development of the trees, instead of a fixed schedule based upon the development of the trees alone. A fixed spray schedule has proved scientifically unsound.

Plant pathologists have made an intensive study of the development of this disease. This has shown that the proper timing of the spray applications is necessary to effective control.

Trained plant pathologists stationed in the fruit districts of the State, will make daily observations in orchards to determine the condition of the organism that causes the disease. These studies will enable them to state when a spray should be applied.

The present plan is for these field men to report their findings daily to the county agricultural agent who will then relay the information to interested fruit growers. This information will also be broadcast.

Writer Claims Vanity

Is Spoiling Language

Vanity is corrupting the French language, says Abel Bonnard, a writer of note.

It is vanity, he says, that leads people to prefer a new word, coined or from another language, to the old one they really know and understand.

"The public likes to be fooled," he remarks, agreeing with Mr. Barnum. He cites many words used currently to describe things long used and with names of their own, but which, for commercial purposes, like the hard-working rabbit skin in the fur business, have to be baptized anew to create that "desire to buy" in the customer.

This vanity to have the latest thing, even when only the name is new, Bonnard regards as one of the chief differences between the passing generation of conservative people and the "modernists." Many people who are "up to date," he observes, shy at expressing themselves clearly and need obscure words and phrases to portray the haziness of their own minds.

All Cooped Up

Jean became ill with chicken pox. Her mother made her stay in the house from play, and a wondering friend called to find out why she was not out. Jean's mother told him that she had the chicken pox and could not come out. The lad rushed away and breathlessly broke the news to his mother. "Oh, mother, Jean can't come out because she's got the chicken coops."

Joseph W. Adkins,

BRITISH CROWN GEMS*Jewel Room Defies Ingenuity of Thieves.

London.—The crown jewels of England, valued at tens of millions of dollars, have been placed under stricter guard since visiting American gunmen were credited with participating in a series of gigantic jewel robberies recently.

The jewels, spread out in glittering array, are seen by thousands of American tourists every year in the Tower of London. They simply pay their sixpence, walk by two guards attired like the familiar portraits of Henry VIII, and stand and gush over the jewels as long as they like. Then they rush out to send picture post cards back to Iowa, Kansas and Oklahoma.

Appear to Be Unguarded.

Apparently they are under very little supervision and many are heard to remark how easy it would be to break the glass and help one's self to a couple of million-dollar crowns or a scepter or two. But the last serious attempt to raid the crown jewels was made by Colonel Blood in 1671 and he never recovered.

The jewel room in the Tower of London is as nearly burglar-proof as human ingenuity can devise. The octagonal glass jewel case in which the jewels are stored is protected by slender steel bars five inches apart and looks commonplace enough. It stands in the center of the jewel room and is about ten feet high. The jewels are arranged artistically on white satin tiers.

Any attempt, however, to tamper with the case would set alarm bells ringing all over the tower, while the outer gates of the fortress, started by William the Conqueror, would automatically clang shut. At the same instant the occupants of the jewel room would find themselves imprisoned by the mechanical closing of the doors, which would convert the jewel room into a large penitentiary cell. Steel shutters, ordinarily hidden from view, would automatically descend over the glass case containing the jewels, converting it into a gigantic eight-sided safe.

Before the would-be burglar knew what was happening the chances are he would find himself in Scotland Yard.

Famous Jewels in Collection.

Among other jewels the case contains: The crown of England, made for Charles II.

The king's state crown made for Queen Victoria's coronation, containing a gigantic ruby given to the Black Prince and worn by Henry V at Agincourt; a portion of the Cullinan diamond presented to Edward VII by Transvaal, the Stuart "sapphire" and 3,000 smaller diamonds of only a few carats each.

The imperial state crown, made for King George V for the Delhi durbar, containing a large emerald and more than 6,000 diamonds.

Queen Mary's state crown, containing the famous Kohinoor diamond, presented to Queen Victoria by the East India company, and the two other portions of the Cullinan diamond.

The royal scepter, which has the largest cut diamond in the world for a knob.

When his majesty needs any of these trinkets they are taken from the Tower of London to Buckingham palace by an ordinary automobile, without any special precautions other than secrecy.

Replace Bucket Brigade as Fire Guard to King

London.—The bucket brigade and all other paraphernalia of the old-fashioned fire-fighting outfit at Buckingham palace is to be replaced by up-to-date apparatus.

An ancient bell resembling those used in the United States to call the farm hands to meals already has disappeared and modern gongs operated by electricity have been installed to summon aid in event of emergency.

Notwithstanding the antiquated fire-prevention machinery long in use at the king's town residence, the royal palace has not had a serious blaze for many years. This is attributed to construction and the fact that the building is guarded day and night.

The worst fire in the history of the royal houses was in 1698, when Whitehall palace was destroyed. A laundress had placed a lot of linen before a charcoal fire to dry and within a few hours the apartments of King William III, the privy council office and the office of the secretary of state had been destroyed.

Beggar Is Wealthy

New York.—Horton Malone, legless beggar, who has been going to parties from his hotel suite in a $3,000 car while Mrs. Malone has been wintering at Miami, is to spend a month in the workhouse.

Can't Rob Hubby

Kansas City, Mo.—A wife has no right to steal from her husband, a jury of men decided in the Circuit court here. Mrs. Florence Koontz was convicted of petty larceny.

Dolling the Mule

New York.—Progressive doughboys have found a method of doling up the army mule with impunity. Instead of a currycomb a vacuum cleaner is used.

POLITICAL CALDRON WILL BE BOILING IN SHORT TIME*Prophecy Is Made That Governor Donahey Will Be
Candidate For United States Senator To Succeed
Simeon D. Fess—Martin Davey Is Making
Noise Like a Gubernatorial Aspirant—If Republicans
Hope To Win They Must Bury Differences.

Friends of Governor Donahey who are over zealous in his behalf and would be pleased to see him again a candidate for the chief executiveship in 1928, are to be disappointed in the attitude the governor himself will assume. He will not permit himself to be even considered for a fourth term. This statement has been made to friends who are close in his confidence. He has said emphatically that he feels enough honor has been given him in the election three times and he cannot give consideration to the further tenure in his office.

Another consideration which has undoubtedly influenced him in this decision is the attitude the Republican senate has taken during the present session. The senators have confirmed every appointment sent by the governor, except one that of W. D. McKinney, of Columbus, as a member of the State Public Utilities commission to succeed Frank Maullar, of Chillicothe, who holds over, under an appointment given him by Governor Harry L. Davis. Maullar is making a fight to stay and has considerable support, but if McKinney is not confirmed the governor will feel so well satisfied with the consideration shown him that he will not be a candidate again.

It is considered as well determined however, that he will seek the Democratic nomination for United States senator to oppose Senator Simeon D. Fess. He has a feeling that he can be successful in this both as to nomination and election.

Friends of the governor have known for some time that he has a kindly feeling for Washington life and feels a term or two in the senate would be a fitting close to his political life. The ambition he holds in this direction possess a large degree of strategy and is based on sound political judgment. The prestige which is his from having been the first man in this history of the state to be elected as governor three successive times will prove of tremendous advantage in making his fight for the senatorial office. He will undoubtedly have opposition in his party but it is doubtful if it could be made of sufficient strength to keep the nomination away.

Another political story which the governor has silenced is the talk that he may be a candidate for the presidency. He has repeatedly announced he would not accept the nomination if it were brought to him on a silver platter. No later than the past week he said to a friend who urged him to try for the presidency that he knew his limitations and did not feel he was suited to the presidential chair. When asked about the United States senatorship he made no definite reply but did let the significant statement escape that if he were senator he would let it be known that he was the senator of all the people and not of any particular class or party and would stand by the president when he believed the latter was right. He thought such an attitude might have a beneficial effect on the body.

The determination of the governor not to be a candidate for the fourth term as chief executive will have the effect of drawing attention away from him as to that office and centering it around his candidacy for senator. It will also compel the party leaders to look about for a suitable candidate for the head of the state ticket in the campaign of next year.

Undoubtedly at this time, a year or more away, the indications point to the nomination of Congressman Martin L. Davey, of Kent, Portage county, who represents the 14th Ohio district in the National house of representatives. Davey's friends are working on the presumption he will be a candidate altho he has refused to commit himself. But it is common knowledge that a movement has been started in his behalf thruout the state and nothing has been done to stop the progress it is making. The Davey supporters do not propose to wait until next year before having such an organization perfected as will make him a formidable candidate. They are going ahead now while the outlook is good on the assumption that it is good policy to talk Davey and advance his stock.

But Davey will have opposition the strength of which it is hard to estimate but he will also have the advantage which comes from being first in the field and that is always of consequence.

While the Democrats are more active in the way of talk and perhaps, up to this time achievement, the Republicans are sleeping in their tents. There is a realization that the state campaign is not so far away as to permit a feeling of lethargy overtake them.

The chief concern is to bring the party together so that it may work in harmony in the contest of next year. That is admitted to have been the cause of defeat for the governorship, which placed Donahey in the chair three successive times.

State Chairman Fred Warner, of Marion, is insistent that all factional differences be dropped and has repeatedly said that it is doubtful if success can come for the head of the ticket unless this is done. From now on he is going to devote himself assiduously to that end. His attitude is that there are enough good reasons to defeat the Democrats for the governorship, but it cannot be accomplished with a score of candidates for the gubernatorial nomination and a feeling of ill will among the supporters of those who are defeated at the primaries.

In plain words he says that the Republicans have defeated themselves in the last three campaigns for the head of the ticket and it is time an awakening to this fact came and they moved along in harmony.

He feels it is the poorest kind of politics not to be able to agree on one man for the nomination when there are so many good ones to choose from and then to get behind the nominee unanimously. When this is done he feels success is sure but there will be doubt until the lesson which this carries has been learned.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

A very unique program was given Thursday afternoon, March 31, by the Ladies' Aid society of the U. B. church. Mrs. Will Denman, known to the all the church as "Aunt Clara," had charge of the program, which consisted of an old-fashioned meeting conducted in the old-fashioned way. Eleven ladies dressed in bonnets and shawls and spectacles, such as our grandmothers used to wear, were led into the room by Aunt Clara. Then followed sweet, old hymns, each being lined before singing, which sung so reverently, brought lumps to the throats. A reading: "The Old-Fashioned Church," was given by Miss Iva Phelps which was interspersed by lines from old hymns, given by the old ladies. Mrs. Belle Foresman read a very interesting history of the beginning of the Ladies' Aid society under the pastorate of Rev. A. E. Wright, in 1893. Delicious refreshments of pineapple, custard pie and coffee were served by the March committee to the large number of visitors and members present. All in all, it was a happy occasion and one to be long remembered by those present. Those helping in the old-fashioned sing with Aunt Clara were: Mrs. George Smith, Mrs. Artie Lucas, Misses Iva and Amanda Phelps, Mrs. John Goff, Mrs. Frank Collier, Mrs. Minnie Eldridge, Mrs. Luther Noggle, Mrs. Elizabeth Peters and Mrs. Kate Reichelderfer. A birthday cake containing 85 candles was presented Mrs. Peters, which she shared with all present.

Biggest New EnglanderJailed, Perils Supplies

Providence, R. I.—Nick Tartaglione, the biggest man in New England, who tips the scales at 518 pounds, was sentenced to seven months in jail and fined $100 and costs in Superior court here for violating the prohibition law. His attorney warned the court that the state would have to pass a special appropriation to feed the man in jail. "Big Nick" traveled with a circus and gave public demonstrations on the stage of his enormous food capacity. A "fair meal," in his view, was five pounds of spaghetti, two chickens, four lobsters, a loaf of bread and a gallon of wine. He is the father of 17 children.

"Good, but rather too pointed," as the fish said when he swallowed the baited hook.

AMUSEMENTS

Warner Baxter, Lois Wilson, Neil Hamilton, Georgia Hale, William Powell, Hale Hamilton, George Nash, Carmelita Geraghty, Eric Blore, "Gun boat" Smith and Claire Whitney.

If that isn't a cast to write home about, you've never seen one! Each of these players is in Paramount's "The Great Gatsby" which came to the Met last night. And—none of them have ever appeared to better advantage.

"The Great Gatsby," adapted by Elizabeth Meehan from F. Scott Fitzgerald's famous novel, tells the tale of Jay Gatsby, a mysterious figure in Long Island society. His house is the rendezvous of pleasure and excitement seekers. Thru it wanders a lonely figure, friendless and "just a good fellow"—the host. He lives but one thing,—the girl he left behind on going to war. Married to another man, Gatsby believes she still loves him.

Warner Baxter makes a real person out of Gatsby. Lois Wilson plays Daisy Buchanan, which should be doubly interesting in view of the fact that Lois flaunts her new bob for the first time. Neil Hamilton and Georgia Hale complete the featured quartet.

Peculiar Glass Drop

Prince Rupert's drop is a kind of glass drop with a long tail, made by dropping melted glass into water, and remarkable for the property (due to internal strain) of bursting into fragments when the surface is scratched or the tail broken. It is so called from Prince Rupert, nephew of Charles I, who first brought the drops to England.

Old Egyptians Found Enjoyment in Puzzles

Puzzles, of which the human race seems never to tire, were popular forms of amusement hundreds of years before Christ, says Sam Loyd, the puzzle expert, in an article in Liberty. "Our knowledge of early puzzles is based mostly on traditions and early writings," he points out. "The most ancient puzzles of which we actually know the author's name date back to 1500 B. C. These are contained in an Egyptian papyrus reposing in the British museum. The title of this prized relic is 'Directions for Knowing All Dark Things.' The author was a priest named Ahmes. His puzzles were not difficult, since they dealt mainly with simple arithmetic. "Frequently I am asked to name the world's first puzzle crank," Loyd continues. "But to identify the playful fellow who first took it upon himself to tie mental knots for his friends would be about as hopeless as trying to put my finger on the first teller of funny stories, or to isolate that intrepid character who downed the first oyster."

The man who sleeps during the play may not be a critic, but he does express his opinion.

Flowering Aloes

It is not true the aloe lives 100 years before it flowers. It lives many years—ten to fifteen or more—before flowering, whence the name, Century plant. The South African aloe flowers once in about 20 years, and there are aloes in the Scilly Isles which do the same.

The Right Spirit

The spirit of young America is shown by any small boy with a scooter. He knows he cannot hope to run over as many people as his elders can in their motor cars, but he isn't at all discouraged by that. He goes right ahead and does his best.

Immortal Tribute

"In Memoriam" is the title of a long poem by Lord Tennyson, one of the great poets of English literature. It is a tribute of affection to the memory of Tennyson's friend of college days, Arthur Hallam, son of Hallam, one of whose great works is the Constitutional History of England.

Big Numbers

There are over 600,000,000,000,000,000,000 possible combinations of the English alphabet, so that a man may be excused for not understanding what baby says.

This One Is Noisy

Douglas pine squirrel is darker and browner than its relatives, for it inhabits the moist, coniferous forests west of the Cascades in the Pacific Northwest, says Nature Magazine. It is a noisy little animal, scolding or singing as the mood of the moment indicates. Any edible thing will do for a red squirrel's meal. Average length is 14 inches.

The report shows that in 1926 the company performed the largest volume of public service, and realized the largest gross and net earnings in its history.

After providing for this payment to stockholders and for sinking and other reserve funds and for all other charges, SURPLUS for the year amounted to $30,270,966.

The successful achievement of the past year reflecting as it did the great prosperity of the country was also made possible by increasingly friendly and effective cooperation between employees and management in rendering the service to the public, and by constructive cooperation with the Company on the part of the general public and Governmental authorities.

Washington, April 4.—(UP.)—Objection by the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad to intervention by minority stockholders in the proceeding involving acquisition of the Erie and Pere Marquette railroad and an issue of $59,999,000 of capital stock were overruled today by the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

The commission granted Geo. S. Kemp and a committee of minority stockholders of the Chesapeake & Ohio permission to fight the merger which is the latest consolidation move by the Van Swearingen brothers.

BILLY EMERSON

LIVES QUIETLY

Golden-Voiced Minstrel Is Now Past Seventy.

Newport, Ky.—Billy Emerson, whose golden voice formerly thrilled thousands of minstrelsy lovers all over America and Europe, is living quietly in Newport. He is well over seventy now, but his voice retains much of the sweetness that brought him fame when he was a star among all the luminaries. He sings with a haunting lilt that brings back old memories, but there is nothing of the "old-timer" about Mr. Emerson. He is as chipper as he was in the nights when his bounding upon the stage brought as much applause as does the appearance of even the most effete star of the stage in these times.

Mr. Emerson is probably the last of the noted minstrel men of the earlier day. He has made numerous tours of America and has had experiences enough to crowd a book of "memories." But he does not live in the past, though he does talk of the moguls of minstrel times when he is urged.

Mr. Emerson, with Mrs. Emerson, lives quietly here, ever and anon going out for an evening when Mr. Emerson obliges with some of his successes in the days when minstrel men were minstrel men. Mrs. Emerson, upon whose hair snows of age have fallen, accompanies her husband on the piano.

Mr. Emerson's reminiscence of old days in the black-face art brings up names that read like a roll of honor of the men who have amused millions, and most of whom have outstripped "Billy" Emerson on the way to the golden shore. He has known them all—Lew Dockstader, Jack Haverly, Al Fields, George Evans, and all the leading funsters of the last 50 or 60 years.

Ship Frozen in Arctic

Gets U. S. Radio Bills

Montreal.—The steamer Bay Maude, locked in the frozen waters of the Arctic ocean at Bernard harbor, has been receiving the special Far-North programs, states a wireless message from Aklayik, Northwest territories. Word was sent through this station by the crew of the Bay Maude to Montreal that perfect reception accompanied all the programs.

Aklayik is situated in the delta of the Mackenzie river, which empties into the Arctic ocean, about 600 miles west of Bernard harbor. The latter is a minor bay of Coronation gulf, about five degrees from the North pole. On a schedule arranged nearly a year in advance, four programs sent from as many stations have entertained members of the Royal Canadian mounted police, traders, trappers, missionaries and other inhabitants of the remote Arctic.

The farthest north settlement in the world, Bache peninsula, in Ellesmere-land, is included in these posts, which receive the cheering radio entertainment.

Plan to Move Canadian

Town to Higher Land

Bella Coola, B. C.—Residents here have decided to tow their village across the river and transplant it bodily on a bluff, where the view of snow-clad Cascade range peaks is better.

Each spring, when the snow melts in the highlands, the Bella Coola river goes on a rampage. The town is inundated in places and even threatened with destruction. It was deemed cheaper and safer to move the town than attempt changing the course of the stream or build barricades.

Townfolk here are optimistic over the exodus. They are certain, anyway, that the scenery will be better and are eagerly awaiting a mass meeting to be held soon, at which they will draw lots for sites of their new homes. The government has given them the new town site free of charge.

Some difficulty is anticipated in moving the town across the river, although a majority of the business houses and homes are frame structures.

Shortest Railroad in World Sells for $1,100

Kalama, Wash.—The town of Union, Ore., now owns the shortest railroad in the world, having bid in and purchased the utility at a sale for delinquent taxes. The road, sold by the sheriff, owed many thousands of dollars. It is ten miles long, constructed years ago to connect the territory with the Oregon Short Line at Cove. The purchase price, $1,100, includes a locomotive, one passenger and three freight cars as rolling stock.

INITIAL CONCERT

Given By the Monday Club Was Thoroughly Enjoyed By Capacity House.

Friday evening the first public concert rendered by the Music Division of the Monday Club was given in the club rooms in Memorial Hall before an audience that taxed the capacity of the room. These artists have appeared in public upon various occasions but at no time in the past has the combined efforts of these ladies been heard together in concert except by the members of the Monday Club.

The first two numbers on the program were sung by the chorus which is composed of 15 voices, namely, Miss Watson, Mrs. C. C. Schwarz, Mrs. G. G. Leist, Mrs. James P. Moffitt, Mrs. Charles Lewis, Mrs. Clark Will, Miss Helen Marion, Mrs. Frank Bennett, Mrs. Harry Heffner, Miss Estella Grimes, Miss Jeanette Rowe, Mrs. R. P. Reid, Mrs. Evan Reichelderfer.

Their numbers were "Shepherd Maid" and "Mighty Lak a Rose," these numbers which were used as the opening ones were beautifully interpreted.

The next two numbers were solos by Mrs. Frank Jones Bennett, "There's a Lark in My Heart," by Spross and "An Open Secret," by Woodman. Mrs. Bennett's ability is well known and these solos were very beautiful. Miss Anna Schleyer contributed the next two numbers on the program which were piano selections, Nocturne in E flat and Waltz in C sharp minor, by Chopin.

The quartet which is composed of Mrs. R. P. Reid, Miss Estella Grimes, Mrs. C. C. Schwarz and Mrs. James P. Moffitt then sang "The Sweetest Flower That Blows," by Halley and "The Wood Nymph." These ladies have not sang in public very often and their selections were thoroughly appreciated.

Two solos by Mrs. James Moffitt were, "I Passed by Your Window" and "The Wind Song." Mrs. Moffitt's singing is always appreciated.

Mrs. R. P. Reid sang "The Old Road" and "Reveries," by Oley Speaks, which melodies were beautifully interpreted by Mrs. Reid.

The chorus then sang "The Seasons," by Samuel Richard Gaines. Miss Elizabeth Groce rendered two violin solos, first of which was "Melody," by Dawes and "Fantasie Appassionata," by Duxtempes.

Mrs. Harry Heffner sang "Iris" and "the Open Road," by La Forge.

A duet by Mrs. Bennett and Mrs. Moffitt was next, "The Hunting Song," by Ballard. The closing numbers were sung by the chorus and were all written by Cadman. The first two, "From the Land of the Sky Blue Water" and "The White Dawn," were from his collection of American Indian Songs and the last number was "I hear a Thrush at Eve."

The concert was thoroughly enjoyed by those who were privileged to hear it and it is hoped that in the near future this collection of artists will give another concert so that more music lovers of the city will have an opportunity of hearing them.

Case of Example

Charles, age five, watches closely his twelve-year-old brother Morris. As it happens Morris is fond of books, and each night he replies to father's call to go to bed with: "Aw, dad, wait a minute till I finish this chapter!" One day Charles was entertaining himself by reading a book, already known by heart, when mother called: "Charles, come here, dear, and pick up your blocks; they're scattered all over the floor." "All right, mother," he replied in a preoccupied manner. "Wait till I finish this chapter."

Skeletons at $30 Apiece

Austrian authorities, learning many human skeletons were being shipped to England and America, found a group of medical students in Vienna making good money in this traffic. Whole skeletons are sold at about $30 apiece, "f. o. b. Vienna," skulls, arms, leg bones and other parts accordingly. Several bones are priced as low as ten cents. The skeletons are obtained legitimately from medical schools or by disintering them from cemeteries the Socialist government has ordered vacated.—Capper's Weekly.

White Ant Keeps Busy

The most reproductive insect in the world is the white ant, which lays 80,000 eggs a day, according to Liberty.

And That's That

There had been a heavy thunder-storm the night previous, and the teacher asked George: "Were you not frightened at the thunder and lightning last night?" "No, sir; not a bit." "That's right, George; you are a good boy. You know what causes the thunder, do you not?" "Yes, sir! My grandfather causes it." "Your grandfather? Oh, no. Why do you say such a thing?" "Why, sir, every day before a storm comes up, my grandfather says he feels it in his bones!"

LOANS UP TO $500

Given the same opportunities which have made thousands of others successful, you can succeed if you have faith in your own ability to do what others can. Indeed, nothing can stop you; and the easiest way to reach the high-way of success is to establish a sound credit for yourself first of all. This is imperative: Pay your bills promptly. Never let the "butcher, baker and candle-stick maker" dun you for money you owe them. You have no valid excuse for it, because The City Loan solves such problems so easily.

When you happen to be hard up or any reason (and that is liable to be the lot of the majority at some time) borrow thru the well known City Loan system on your own security like thousands of others do. WAS THE WATCH YOU CARRY NEW...WHEN HANSOMS RULED THE STREETS?

A watch may never lose a second yet be many years slow

The owner of such a watch may never miss a train or an appointment but it is the one false note in his modern makeup, probably the only thing he has that stamps him as a bit old-fashioned, a trifle behind the times. And yet a new and modish Elgin can be had at a moderate sum. Slipped into your pocket, or strapped on your wrist, it will win and hold your affection as no other watch possibly can. For Elgin is conceded to be the world's standard for watch integrity.

THE WOMAN'S WRIST WATCH, in a case of 14-karat solid white gold, is priced at $60. THE MAN'S WATCH may be had in a 14-karat gold-filled case of white or green tone. Sells for $40. Those Helping Hands

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

AMY listened attentively albeit with puckered brow to the unfamiliar business terms tripping lightly from her brother's lips. She was being instructed in her duties at the office that day and was trying her best to absorb intelligently that which was being imparted to her.

Rod, her brother, was jotting down the important telephone numbers and names on the edge of his morning papers and Amy felt that she would get through the day nicely, so comprehensively was Rod noting down her duties for her.

Amy was spending a few weeks in London during the trip abroad her father had given her and Rod's stenographer being away Amy had agreed to go into his office and help where she could. Rod had to be out a good part of the day and it left the responsibility on Amy's shoulders.

When they got off the train at Liverpool street, Rod dived down to the left for his underground train and Amy went out toward her bus.

When she saw the big box waiting for newspapers to be collected for the wards in hospitals she dropped her own in from force of habit as did many more of the suburbanites. It was a simple and natural bit of charity to indulge in.

It wasn't until Amy entered Rod's office and sat down at his big desk that she remembered with a nervous start that she had flung away all his carefully jotted instructions for the day. They had been on the edge of the newspaper and there was no way of getting it back.

She called herself every name under the sun and wondered what she should do, and hoped Rod would not lose a pile of business through her stupidity. She remembered that there were several most important phone calls to make.

It was perhaps an hour and a half before the telephone rang and a man's voice spoke to her. After making sure he had the right number and asking for R. Dalton the man seemed not to know just how to continue.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "I've called up on the chance that your Mr. Dalton left his paper in the hospital box this morning."

"Oh," breathed Amy joyously over the phone, "I have been nearly distracted over the loss of the notes on that paper. Is there any possible way in which it could be sent to me? I cannot leave the office."

The young man at the other end of the telephone rather liked the sound of Amy's voice, and, since his time was his own, he said: "I'll just bring it along myself. Be there in about quarter of an hour."

When he came into the office later Amy noted with satisfaction that the young man's eyes showed distinct approval.

He explained immediately the manner in which the paper had come to him. "I went to see a chap in hospital who had come down in that air crash—I escaped with only a bruise or two. Well, this paper was handed him by his nurse this morning and the first thing he saw were these notes. When I arrived to see him we talked it over and decided they might be important and we looked through the telephone book for Daltons—you see his name had been written in the corner for the delivery boy I suppose."

"You and your friend are some little Sherlocks," laughed Amy.

"It was rather quite simple. But Sid insisted on my calling you. He said anyone who was thoughtful enough to send his paper to poor suffering patients in hospital was worth helping. So—here I am. Is Mr. Dalton not in?" "No," said Amy, "that's the whole trouble. I am trying for a day or two to hold down my brother's office chair and I don't know any more about business than you perhaps know about knitting sweaters. He wrote me down those instructions for today so you may know how badly I have needed them. It is too awfully kind of you to have brought them over."

Amy looked up and smiled quite frankly and exquisitely into Frank Davenport's eyes. It did the trick completely. Frank decided then and there to stay in London until the ship sailed that carried Rod Dalton's sister back to the land of her birth.

"I say—do you think I could help you out in any way? I'm as free as the birds and would be only too glad to get my hands on a little office work."

"Oh!" gasped Amy really delighted at the thought, "but things like that aren't done—are they?"

"They sure can be done. Come, tell me all you know about your brother's business so that I can talk at least with half-way intelligence if anyone calls."

There was no doubt about the combination being a happy one and Amy fell to wondering how any perfectly strange man could grasp things so swiftly and handle business so knowingly as did Frank Davenport. But then, men's brains are different, she decided and realized that if it had been a case of herself going in to help some strange girl in her flat with a baby it would have been just as simple to her as it would have been difficult to a man.

Anyway, strange as the whole situation was, Rod was not in any way displeased, and when he was called on to act as a brother-in-law to Davenport he didn't mind in the least.

FEDERATED CLUBS WILL PLANT TREES

Mrs. Clark Will is County Chairman and Will Register Names of Tree Planters.

Under the direction of Mrs. George McDonald, state chairman of Forests, Parks and Highways for the Ohio Federation of Women's clubs, a Tree Planting campaign is being conducted.

A direct appeal is being made to all federated clubs to enter the contest. In this way, thousands of women who realize the importance of trees and their vital relation to life itself will serve their state and posterity.

This planting will be done in various ways. Trees planted in a school yard are an educational feature, group plantings about a club house serve to beautify. Roads of Remembrance improve our highways and give honor to those to whom honor is due, and if nothing more ambitious is attempted let us hope that each club woman will plant at least one tree in her own door yard, the coming year, that alone would mean 35,000 trees for Ohio, a goodly crop.

A tree of any size or growth is a planting.

All trees must be registered with Mrs. Clark Will, county chairman, not later than May 1st, in order that a complete report may be made at the state convention at Marion, May 4, and the prizes awarded. Information and certificates for registering trees planted may be obtained from your county chairman at any time.

We trust that American Forest Week, which is celebrated April 24 to April 30, this year, will find Ohio in first ranks of the tree planting states of the nation, and Ohio club women can put Ohio there if they choose.

Time for the close of the tree planting contest has been extended to include Arbor day activities April 30.

Clubs all over the state are showing the greatest interest and are planning to have Forestry programs during April, thus stimulating interest of their members in the contest.

NEW FORD CAR A REMARKABLE MOTOR VEHICLE

The Automotive News Says the Magneto Will be Replaced With Distributer.

The Automotive Daily News, March 31, has the following editorial relative to rumors of a new Ford car.

"Mr. Ford's new car, about which so many people are talking, is apparently going to be a remarkable vehicle. It will have four, six and eight cylinders; sliding and non-sliding transmission; will be a radical departure in appearance from the present car, which it will closely resemble; the magneto will be replaced with a distributor, while retaining the magneto precisely as it now stands; underslung elliptic springs and the present type of springing will add to its unusual appearance; it will be late fall and certainly not before the end of the year; the price will be lower than that of model T, it will be precisely the same as that of the model T line, and it will be materially higher; the car is a new creation and it is one that has been ready for years; it will be made on the present Ford machinery and equipment and it will require the utilization of some of the newest and most unusual apparatus; it has been seen in public and it is being kept a sacred secret, under literal cover in the Ford plant. I'd like to see that car."

Meanwhile the sale of Ford cars as shown by new car registrations in the same issue of the Automotive Daily News for the month of January show Ford to be 48,102 and its nearest competitor, Chevrolet to be 32,914 for the entire United States. The figures given are passenger car registrations only and do not include the commercial sales which give Ford 10684 and Chevrolet 4716 for the same period.

If Ford don't lose the Sapiro suit, he probably can afford to pay for the repairs to his coupe, caused when a careless driver crowded him off the road recently.

OHIO SPRAY

SERVICE TO AID FRUIT GROWERS

Fruit growers of Ohio are to receive accurate and timely information concerning the time to apply the various sprays for apple scab. The "spray service," it was announced, will be conducted by plant pathologists of the extension department of the College of Agriculture Ohio State University and of the Ohio Experiment Station co-operating. The spray service, which was inaugurated last year, was so helpful to fruit growers in securing efficient and economical control of apple scab, that they have insisted upon its continuance this year.

The spray service substitutes a flexible spray schedule based upon the condition of the fungus which causes the disease and the prevailing weather conditions, as well as the development of the trees, instead of a fixed schedule based upon the development of the trees alone. A fixed spray schedule has proved scientifically unsound.

Plant pathologists have made an intensive study of the development of this disease. This has shown that the proper timing of the spray applications is necessary to effective control.

Trained plant pathologists stationed in the fruit districts of the State, will make daily observations in orchards to determine the condition of the organism that causes the disease. These studies will enable them to state when a spray should be applied.

The present plan is for these field men to report their findings daily to the county agricultural agent who will then relay the information to interested fruit growers. This information will also be broadcast.

Writer Claims Vanity
Is Spoiling Language

Vanity is corrupting the French language, says Abel Bonnard, a writer of note.

It is vanity, he says, that leads people to prefer a new word, coined or from another language, to the old one they really know and understand.

"The public likes to be fooled," he remarks, agreeing with Mr. Barnum. He cites many words used currently to describe things long used and with names of their own, but which, for commercial purposes, like the hard-working rabbit skin in the fur business, have to be baptized anew to create that "desire to buy" in the customer.

This vanity to have the latest thing, even when only the name is new, Bonnard regards as one of the chief differences between the passing generation of conservative people and the "modernists." Many people who are "up to date," he observes, shy at expressing themselves clearly and need obscure words and phrases to portray the haziness of their own minds.

Jean became ill with chicken pox. Her mother made her stay in the house from play, and a wondering friend called to find out why she was not out. Jean's mother told him that she had the chicken pox and could not come out. The lad rushed away and breathlessly broke the news to his mother. "Oh, mother, Jean can't come out because she's got the chicken coops."

STRIKES GOLD; SAVES OLD HOME

"Dime Thriller" Yarn of a Wandering Son Told by Old Prospectors.

Williams Lake, B. C.—This yarn has all the earmarks of a "dime thriller," but prospectors who have lived and toiled for gold in this vicinity for a quarter of a century have just dug it out of the remote past and are retelling it to the newcomers with all the solemnity befitting a true story.
Many years ago the Barkerville fields near here proved a lodestone of sufficient strength to draw hardy souls from every quarter of the globe. Among them was Benjamin Dillers, a youth from an obscure New York state town. Dillers had heard of the rich Barkerville strike in the Cariboo region while panning gold in California.

Dillers had started out to make a quick fortune following the death of his father and he left his mother at home. For several months the young man wrote regularly to his mother, but fickle fortune seemed to be passing him by and his correspondence became very irregular.

Dillers Strikes It Rich.
He started to work a small claim near here and soon discovered his small area was enormously rich, for it contained what became proverbial in the olden days at Barkerville, "blue dirt and the bedrock pitching." Wherever these conditions were present on the creek the miners took heart and worked all the harder. In one shift Dillers recovered 208 pounds of gold, which was equal to $55,000. The young miner worked away until the whole area was cleaned up, and, unlike many others, he saved every penny above actual expenses.

When his claim was finished he would not consider further investments or additional prospecting, but hurried back to his mother, from whom he had not heard in a long time.

Provided by circumstance with the background of a true "thriller," Dillers arrived at his mother's home in time to see all her property being auctioned off to the highest bidder. No one knew the stranger with the bushy black whiskers, and no one cared who he was until he began buying everything worth while.

Saves the Old Homestead.
When the sale was over Dillers, with dramatic instinct, turned over to his mother all the deeds of sale and then poured gold to the value of several thousand dollars on the table. The neighbors and curiosity seekers discreetly withdrew and left the reunited mother and son to themselves. Dillers and his mother remained in the old home for several years and then removed to New York city.
If the authenticity of this story is questioned the miners will refer you to the records in the city hall at New York, which show that the rich young prospector was elected to the New York council.

Maine Banker Wills Fortune to Humanity

Bath, Maine.—An estate estimated at $1,718,000, of which all but $18,000 is in personal property, was left by George P. Davenport, retired banker and broker, according to William S. Shorey, Arthur J. Dunton and J. Edward Drake, named by him as executors and trustees under the terms of his will, which has been filed in the first session of the Sagadahoc county Probate court.

Mr. Davenport made 20 specific bequests, most of them to institutions, and only one of them personal, totaling $116,000, and the income from the residue, estimated at considerably more than $1,500,000, is to be expended by the trustees for religious, educational and charitable institutions and organizations "which have for their object the good of the world and the bettering of the condition of the human race."

The trustees have nominated Oliver Moses, Charles C. Low and Daniel Williams as appraisers of the estate.

The will was drawn August 26, 1908. Mr. Davenport was never married and upon his death left no near relatives. Outside of a $10,000 bequest to Miss Nellie A. Webber, who was his housekeeper for a long term of years, there are no personal bequests.

Mr. Davenport stated that his father, the late Charles Davenport, gave during his lifetime a very large amount of money to their relatives and he did not feel it his duty to give more.

English Again Taking Snuff With Flourish

London.—Snuff is once more coming into favor in some circles in England as an elegant social accomplishment. The fine gentleman of 1927 points his witty phrases by tapping the lid of his snuffbox, and, as he takes a pinch, makes an arabesque flourish in the air with all the conscious grace of an Eighteenth century beau.

The revival of this custom has created a problem: How can a snuffbox be accommodated without ruining the outline of the modern dress suit? It is only possible to carry a light cargo in evening dress as designed by the tailor of today.

On a slim man even a handkerchief or cigarette case makes a contour that imperils the lines of the suit.

Decoration Day

The time when everyone wishes their cemetery lot to look its best, is not very far away.

A monument or marker always adds a silent dignity to the family burial lot.

Arrange to place your order now when prices are low, and we still have ample time to erect anything selected from stock in time for May 30th.
